

An aerial photograph of a vast, green wetland landscape. A winding river flows through the center, creating several meanders and oxbow-like shapes. The water is a deep blue, contrasting with the vibrant green of the surrounding marshes. In the background, a dense forest of tall trees is visible under a dark, twilight sky. The foreground is dominated by a bright orange and red glow, likely from a sunset or sunrise, which reflects on the water and the lower parts of the landscape.
